NYC 9/11 Public Portal Document

NEW YORK POST, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 6, 2001

Parents in ground zero school battle

Parents of students upended by the Twin Towers disaster are battling Schools Chancellor Harold Levy to delay returning their kids to their school building near ground zero.

Levy aides told parents yesterday the Board of Education wants to reopen PS 234 on Greenwich Street on Jan. 2. But some parents want to hold off until February, after students take the state's 4th-grade English exams. Carl Campanile

CITY_21MC100_011833796

NYC-WTC_000415566