Bob:

Would it be possible for us to have a preliminary phone discussion with Edleman today?

The thought here is that we want to go forward with meeting with the media to discuss the range of data that we have and will have, what it can tell us and others and, equally important, what it cannot tell us. We need to discuss background levels, issues such as finding friable asbestos, non-WTC asbestos, etc.—information reporters need to understand and interpret our data. The feeling is that we need to do this prior to posting data or we will again find others interpreting our data for us. And we know where that takes us.

That said, we very much want to meet with Edleman to discuss how this information can be presented and ask for any advice they may have. To get the ball rolling, we'd like to have our web person and senior policy advisory for communications, Dick Stapleton, call them to have a preliminary chat. We'd like to follow up with a meeting - maybe next week or the week of the 28th. Do you have a name and contact for someone at Edleman? I will call after our briefing with Jane to tell you how things are shaking out.
