EIS International Corporation is the world leader in the application of information technology to crisis decision-making. Our company has developed EIS™, computer and communications software for management of the environment, emergencies, events, energy, and elections.

The company uses EIS as a basis for custom software development; computer and communications system integration; and the design of decision-making environments, including mobile response vehicles, command posts and operation centers.

Supporting these technology applications is our extensive consulting experience in policy studies, technology assessments, training program development, and emergency planning. We conduct training at locations across the U.S. — including our national headquarters training center and a west coast training center. In addition, we publish the Hazard Technology newspaper and a variety of special reports, studies, and technical documentation.
