Tour of WTC site shakes Oprah

By FRANKIE EDOZIEN

Talk show queen Oprah Winfrey toured ground zero yesterday and described the experience as "devastating."

Winfrey, accompanied by her friend, journalist Gayle King, got a personal tour of ground zero from Mayor Giuliani.

Then she returned to City Hall with the mayor to conduct an interview with him for her magazine "O, the Oprah Magazine."

"It was my first time," she said. "It was devastating and moving and nothing prepares you for it. I've done shows, I talked about it, I read about it everyday and nothing prepared me for what I saw."

She described her meeting with Giuliani as "wonderful" — and the mutual admiration continued as the mayor dashed off to Yankee Stadium for last night's game.

"She's wonderful. She was very kind to us at a very critical moment when she came here and did the event at Yankee Stadium, which was very healing, so I feel particularly indebted to Oprah. I think all of New York does," Giuliani gushed.

The magazine article hits newsstands in mid-December.
